

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
1 Natural Theology: Introducing an Approach	1
"Nature" is an Indeterminate Concept	7
Natural Theology is an Empirical Discipline	10
A Christian Natural Theology Concerns the Christian God	12
A Natural Theology is Incarnational, Not Dualist	14
Resonance, Not Proof: Natural Theology and Empirical Fit	15
Beyond Sense-Making: The Good, the True, and the Beautiful	18
Part I The Human Quest for the Transcendent:
The Context for Natural Theology	21
2 The Persistence of the Transcendent	23
Natural Theology and the Transcendent	28
The Triggers of Transcendent Experiences	33
The Transcendent and Religion	36
3 Thinking About the Transcendent:
Three Recent Examples	41
Iris Murdoch: The Transcendent and the Sublime	46
Roy Bhaskar: The Intimation of Meta-Reality	50
John Dewey: The Curious Plausibility of the Transcendent	53

4	Accessing the Transcendent: Strategies and Practices	59
	Ascending to the Transcendent from Nature	60
	Seeing the Transcendent Through Nature	66
	Withdrawing from Nature to Find the Transcendent Within Oneself	69
	Discerning the Transcendent in Nature	73
5	Discernment and the Psychology of Perception	80
	Perception is Brain-Based	84
	Perception Involves Dynamic Mental Structures	86
	Perception is Egocentric and Enactive	92
	Perception Pays Attention to Significance	98
	Perception Can Be Modulated by Motivation and Affect	102
	Human Perception and Natural Theology	105
	Conclusion to Part I	110
Part II The Foundations of Natural Theology:
Ground-Clearing and Rediscovery		113
6	The Open Secret: The Ambiguity of Nature	115
	The Mystery of the Kingdom: Jesus of Nazareth and the Natural Realm	117
	The Levels of Nature: The Johannine “I am” Sayings	126
	Gerard Manley Hopkins on “Seeing” Nature	133
7	A Dead End? Enlightenment Approaches to Natural Theology	140
	The Enlightenment and its Natural Theologies:
	Historical Reflections	141
	The Multiple Translations and Interpretations of the “Book of Nature”	147
	The Flawed Psychological Assumptions of the Enlightenment	156
	The Barth–Brunner Controversy (1934) and Human Perception	158
	Enlightenment Styles of Natural Theology:
	Concluding Criticisms	165
8	A Christian Approach to Natural Theology	171
	On “Seeing” Glory: The Prologue to John’s Gospel	172
	A Biblical Example: The Call of Samuel	174

CONTENTS

The Christian Tradition as a Framework for Natural Theology	177
Natural Theology and a Self-Disclosing God	179
Natural Theology and an Analogy Between God and the Creation	185
Natural Theology and the Image of God	190
Natural Theology and the Economy of Salvation	198
Natural Theology and the Incarnation	209
Conclusion to Part II	216
Part III Truth, Beauty, and Goodness: An Agenda for a Renewed Natural Theology
9 Truth, Beauty, and Goodness: Expanding the Vision for Natural Theology	221
10 Natural Theology and Truth	232
Resonance, Not Proof: Natural Theology and Sense-Making	233
The Big Picture, Not the Gaps: Natural Theology and Observation of the World	238
Natural Theology, Counterintuitive Thinking, and Anthropic Phenomena	240
Natural Theology and Mathematics: A “Natural” Way of Representing Reality	245
Truth, Natural Theology, and Other Religious Traditions	248
On Retrieving the Richness of Truth	252
Truth and a Natural Theology of the Imagination	255
11 Natural Theology and Beauty	261
Recovering the Place of Beauty in Natural Theology	262
The Neglect of Beauty: The “Deconversion” of John Ruskin	265
Hugh Miller on the Aesthetic Deficiencies of Sense-Making	268
John Ruskin and the Representation of Nature	271
The Beauty of Theoretical Representations of Nature	273
Beauty, Awe, and the Aesthetic Engagement with Nature	277
Aesthetics and the “Seeing” of Beauty	280
Beauty, Natural Theology, and Christian Apologetics	282

CONTENTS

12	Natural Theology and Goodness	291
	The Moral Vision of Reality	292
	Natural Theology and Natural Law	294
	The Eternal Return of Natural Law	297
	The Moral Ambivalence of Nature	300
	The Knowability of Goodness in Nature	306
	The Discernment of Goodness: The Euthyphro Dilemma	310
	Conclusion to Part III	312
13	Conclusion	314
	Bibliography	316
	Index	366