

Contents

Note on editors	page viii
List of contributors	ix
Note on CIB	xii
Note on Think Lab	xiii
Acknowledgements	xiv
Preface	xv
Peter Brandon
PART 1 THE CONTEXT FOR INNOVATION	1
1 A global agenda for revaluing construction: the client's role Peter Barrett	3
2 Revaluing construction: implications for the construction process Graham M. Winch	16
3 Is the client really part of the team? A contemporary policy perspective on Latham/Egan John Hobson and Kenneth Treadaway	26
4 Enabling clients to be professional Roger Courtney	33
5 Challenging the illusion of the all powerful clients' role in driving innovation Martin Sexton, Carl Abbott and Shu-Ling Lu	43
6 Reifying the client in construction management research? Alternative perspectives on a complex construct Mike Bresnen	49
7 A proposed taxonomy for construction clients Patricia Tzortzopoulos, Mike Kagioglou and Kenneth Treadaway	58
8 Clients' roles and contributions to innovations in the construction industry: when giants learn to dance Charles Egbu	69
9 Setting the game plan: the role of clients in construction innovation and diffusion Kristian Widén, Brian Atkin and Leif Hommen	78
10 Clients as innovation drivers in large engineering projects Roger Miller	88

11	Knowing differently, innovating together? Exploring the dynamics of knowledge creation across boundaries in clients' design teams Patrick S. W. Fong	101
12	The role of the client in the innovation processes of small construction professional service firms Shu-Ling Lu	111
13	Client-oriented contractor innovation Jan Bröchner	125
14	Driving innovation in construction: a conceptual model of client leadership behaviour Mohammed F. Dulaimi	137
15	Critical actions by clients for effective development and implementation of construction innovations E. Sarah Slaughter and William L. Cate	146
PART 2 THE INNOVATION PROCESS		155
16	Overcoming resistance to innovation: the integration champion in construction Andreas Hartmann	157
17	Client-driven innovation through a requirements-oriented project process John M. Kamara	167
18	Knowledge management supports clients driving innovation: two case studies Marja Naaranoja, Päivi Haapalainen and Heikki Lonka	177
19	Implementing innovations in infrastructures for the built environment: the role of project developers, customers and users Marcela Miozzo and Nuno Gil	190
PART 3 MOVING IDEAS INTO PRACTICE		201
20	Client driven performance improvement strategies for the construction industry: development and implementation challenges Aminah Robinson Fayek, Jeff H. Rankin and Ernie Tromposch	203
21	Public policy, clients and the construction industry Eileen Fairhurst	216
22	Value for money versus complexity: a battle of giants in the public sector? Erica Dyson	223
23	The role of the professional client in leading change: a case study of Stanhope plc Colin Gray	234

24	Customer focus: time, the enemy of desire – a contractor developer perspective Chris Woods	241
25	The role of the client in building site innovations Frédéric Bougrain	252
26	A complex systems approach to customer co-innovation: a financial services case study Robert Kay	262
	Index	270